BIODEGRADABLE CREMATION URNS

The Journey Earthurns® and The Shell Urns are perfect for ocean or deep water burial. Fabricated by hand from recycled and earth-friendly materials. These urns will float momentarily and then sink gracefully. Once on the ocean floor, the urn will dissolve naturally over time. Includes a water-soluble plastic bag, which dissolves on contact with water, allowing the cremated remains to be dispersed within minutes. The time each Earthurn® takes to break down will vary depending on climatic conditions.

Types of Urns

Some people think an urn is an urn is an urn. But that's not the case. Every family's situation is unique, and there are urns for all sorts of situations. Here are a few:

Permanent Individual Urn

These urns are designed to hold the entire remains of the deceased. Some are designed for permanent display, usually in the home, while others are made to be stored in a columbarium or other permanent resting place.

Double Urn

Designed to hold the remains of two people, typically a husband and wife, or otherwise committed couple.

Companion Urns

Similar to the Double Urn, but with two separate compartments.

Scattering Urn

An urn used to scatter remains, typically over ground or water that has particular significance to the deceased or the family.

Biodegradable Urn

An alternative to the Scattering Urn, the biodegradable urn can be buried, slowly dissolving and gently returning the remains to the earth. Or, for water burial, it will dissolve more quickly to release the remains.

Infant/Child Urn

These have a smaller capacity, designed to hold the remains of an infant or small child. They are frequently designed with a child theme.

Keepsake Urn

A type of urn that typically holds a portion of remains, allowing family members to share the remains of the deceased.

Keepsake Jewelry

Similar to a keepsake urn, keepsake jewelry allows wearers to discretely take a small portion of remains, lock of hair, or other remembrance with them wherever they go. The tradition of keepsake jewelry goes back to the Middle Ages, when "Memento Mori" ("Remember Me") jewelry was created by encasing a lock of hair in gold, silver, or other precious components.

Temporary Remains Containers

Used only by Cremation professionals, these are primarily used to transport remains from one location to another.

Cremains Vault

Necessary if the urn is going to be buried, the vault protects the urn and remains from water and other elements naturally occurring in the ground. Many urns can be laser-engraved or have appliques attached to personalize the urn with symbols or images that were uniquely important in the life of the deceased.

Materials

Urn is made in a wide variety of materials, to appeal to all tastes and situations. Here are some of the most popular:

Metals

Bronze

Urn is available in both cast and spun bronze. Bronze is an alloy of copper - a fairly soft metal - mixed with either zinc or tin for added strength and durability. Bronze is used in cast, usually classically sculptural designs, or in spun designs which are usually cleaner and more contemporary, with less applied decoration. Bronze urns are naturally an attractive, rich-looking reddish tan in color, with a lovely sheen, although other surface treatments (often called patinas) can vary the appearance considerably.

Pewter

An alloy of copper, tin, and antimony, Pewter has a lustrous, silvery appearance.

Steel

An alloy of iron and carbon, often with traces of other elements to improve working and performance characteristics. Steel can be made with a muted finish - satiny, or even matte, and often has decorative coatings applied. One notable example of steel is Stainless Steel, which resists corrosion, oxidation or rusting, even without a coating. Stainless steel can be polished to a mirror-like silver finish.

Brass

An alloy consisting essentially of copper and zinc in variable proportions.

Zinc

A bluish-white metallic element, zinc is a highly durable material that lends itself well to die casting.

Ceramics

All ceramics are made by shaping clay and heating it to a very high temperature, creating a very hard, durable, corrosion-resistant material.

Porcelain

A very fine type of ceramic, fired with glazes that give it an elegant, shiny appearance, frequently elaborately decorated.

Cloisonné

A type of fine ceramic covered with different colors of enamel separated by thin strips of metal set on edge, usually in astonishingly-detailed designs. Cloisonné is a centuries-old art form that originated in China.

Crystal

A material in which the atoms are arranged in a rigid geometrical structure marked by symmetry. Crystals often have clearly visible geometrical shapes.

Wood

Hardwoods

Woods such as Walnut, Oak, Cherry and Mahogany are classified as hardwoods due to their toughness, and the fact that they typically come from deciduous trees. (The other classification, softwoods, are usually from conifers and are often more prone to dents and other wear.) Hardwoods are normally more expensive than softwoods, because the trees grow more slowly.

Medium Density Fiberboard (MDF)

Medium Density Fiberboard is an engineered wood product made by breaking down hardwood or softwood residuals into wood fibres, often in a defibrator, combining it with wax and a resin binder, and forming panels by applying high temperature and pressure

Modern Materials

Cultured Stone

Cultured materials, such as cultured marble, are made by combining natural materials (usually stone) with modern polymers. The very durable result looks like natural stone, but since the material can be molded, it is more versatile than natural stone. Many color variations are available. Some versions avoid the veining - the weakest part of natural stone - for a smoother, more uniform appearance.

Cold Cast

Tough, hard polymers (Polymers: A natural or synthetic compound consisting of similar molecules linked together.) that are particularly well-suited for casting in elaborate, intricate molds. Cold Cast materials are particularly known for their durability.

Glossary

Columbarium

A vault or other structure with niches that will hold remains in memoriam.

Cremains

Short for cremated remains.

Keepsake

A type of urn that typically holds a portion of remains, a lock of hair, or some other item of remembrance, allowing family members to share the remains of the deceased.

Niche

A recess or compartment in a columbarium or other structure designed to hold remains, almost always contained in an urn.

Urn

Originally a vase with a foot or pedestal used to hold cremated remains; now, urns come in a vast array of shapes, sizes and materials, and for a wide variety of applications.
